

1440 Foundation plans to restore Scotts Valley campus

1440 Foundation is reviewing plans with the City of Scotts Valley for the thoughtful restoration and re-opening of the Bethany University Scotts Valley campus. Our intention is to create a lasting local resource by opening an adult learning center for the development of personal and professional life, health, and wellness practices.

The vision we have for the campus is to be a learning community serving as a catalyst for the connection to your best self. We will offer immersive programs to individuals and groups, in a natural setting where people can come together to learn, to share, and to grow in their understanding of self and others. It is our hope that everyone who joins us will look a little deeper into themselves, listen a little more carefully to others, and explore with intention the possibility of richer, deeper connections and greater fulfillment in their lives and their careers.

The 1440 Foundation is a not-for-profit organization with a vision of building compassionate communities leading generative lives. We serve our vision with grants, investments, and support for people and programs (we call them Champions) committed to helping us grow in relationship, spirit, and wellness.

- We believe compassion is natural, that we are each born with it.
- Compassion flourishes in communities, where together we can be more, and do more, than we could alone.
- Everyone has the opportunity to lead with courage; to be the first to act with compassion and empathy. Leading encourages others to do the same.
- Generative lives are those that create more energy than they consume.

There are 1440 minutes in day. That's 1440 opportunities for everyone, no matter who we are, to be more aware and mindful of how we're spending our time. Deeper connections. Richer relationships. More compassionate communities. It all begins with being aware of ourselves and ourselves in relationship with others.
